Thema: Supplementing Forms of Teaching – Competitions in Informatics

Abstract:

We present the competitions of students in programming (in Slovakia and in the world) and we show that they are very suitable supplements of teaching of informatics on middle schools. The competitions are oriented on a solving of given problems – developing of algorithms, describing of their corrections and programming and debugging of the developed algorithms. Some problems from Slovak Correspondence Seminar in Programming will be presented and described some solutions of them.

The competitions oriented in the previous way can have an influence to the programming style of accompanied students. We present information and results of students on international competitions, too.
